Fallo de seguridad en WordPress expone a millones de webs

Actualizado 11/05/2015 11:29:00 CET

MADRID, 10 May. (Portaltic) -

Un grupo de especialistas en seguridad informática ha descubierto recientemente una vulnerabilidad de seguridad en los sitios Web construidos en WordPress. El problema afectaría a una serie de complementos y temas preinstalados en la plataforma, que permitiría a un atacante tomar el control de la web.

Entre los afectados se encuentra "TwentyFifteen", mítico tema preinstalado con la plataforma web. Pero no ha sido el único, sino que gadgets y pluggings también se han visto afectados por este fallo Cross-site o XSS.

Mass exploit of WordPress plugin backdoors sites running Joomla, Magento, too

MailPoet attacks commandeer an estimated 30,000 to 50,000 sites, researcher says.

DAN GOODIN - 7/23/2014, 10:56 PM

As many as 50,000 websites have been remotely commandeered by attackers exploiting a recently patched vulnerability in a popular plugin for the WordPress content management system, security researchers said Wednesday.

As Ars reported in early July, the vulnerability in MailPoet, a WordPress plugin with more than 1.7 million downloads, allows attackers to upload any file of their choice to vulnerable servers. In the three weeks since then, attackers have exploited the bug to install a backdoor on an estimated 30,000 to 50,000 websites, some that don't even run WordPress software or that don't have MailPoet enabled, according to Daniel Cid, CTO of security firm Sucuri.

"To be clear, the MailPoet vulnerability is the entry point," he wrote in a blog post. "It doesn't mean your website has to have it enabled or that you have it on the website; if it resides on the server, in a neighboring website, it can still affect your website." In an e-mail to Ars, he elaborated:

This screenshot shows the WordPress dashboard's 'WordPress Updates' section. At the top, there is a 'Help' dropdown and a 'Home' link. Below that, the 'Akismet & Privacy' section contains a message about GDPR transparency, with links to 'enable or disable this feature' and 'More information'. A 'Check Again' button is present. The main message states: 'You have the latest version of WordPress. Future security updates will be applied automatically.' Below this, a note mentions re-installing version 5.0.3 with a 'Re-install Now' button. The 'Plugins' section lists 'All In One SEO Pack' with version 2.10.1 installed and 2.11 available, including a compatibility note for WordPress 5.0.3. A 'Select All' checkbox is checked, and an 'Update Plugins' button is at the bottom.

This screenshot is identical to the one on the left, showing the WordPress dashboard's 'WordPress Updates' section. It includes the 'Akismet & Privacy' notice, the main update message, the re-installation note, and the 'All In One SEO Pack' plugin update information with a checked 'Select All' option and an 'Update Plugins' button.

WP-Cron Trigger

MainWP relies on a built in WordPress file called wp-cron.php to trigger scheduled events.

However, since we suggest you install your MainWP Dashboard on a fresh dedicated site it will get almost no traffic which means your scheduled tasks such as backups and automatic updates may not be triggered in a timely manner.

In order to work around that we suggest you sign up for the free Uptime Robot service that will "visit" your dashboard site and make sure that Cron Jobs are regularly triggered.
